Keith Yeomans is Special Counsel in the Long Beach office and specializes in litigation. He has represented public entities at the state and local level and has defended school districts and community college districts in business, property and construction cases as well as charter school disputes. Before joining Dannis Woliver Kelley, Keith was primarily involved in the defense of consumer class actions and commercial litigation on both sides of the table, and has served as lead counsel in dozens of lawsuits in federal and state courts, both in California and throughout the country as national counsel. He has a background handling the unique regulatory and environmental issues that arise when dealing with regulated industries, including telecommunications and oil and natural gas production. Keith has extensive experience in all phases of litigation, from pleadings and discovery through trial and the appellate process.
